Council To Pick ASB Custodian

Applications for the position of student body equipment custodian will be reviewed by the Student Council at its regular meeting today at 3:30 o'clock, according to Lud Spolyar, ASB president.

The council expects to appoint someone to succeed Jinx Johnson, who resigned from the post last week, Spolyar said.

In his letter of resignation, Johnson recommended Dana Sutton and Gene Standfield as possible applicants for the office. Both Sutton and Standfield will be considered by the council in its selection.

Jean Ann Bailey, chairman of the Camp Minnewanqua committee, is expected to submit a financial report to the council. The committee has asked the council to appropriate funds for tuition fees for four camp leadership representatives.

UP ROUNDUP

Truman Flips Two First-day Pitches

Washington—President Truman, booted last year, was cheered yesterday by a crowd of 30,000 persons as he threw out two "first balls" in the opening day baseball game between Washington and Boston.

A-Blast in Nevada

Las Vegas—The biggest daylight flash resulting from a Nevada atomic explosion lit up the cloud-rimmed horizon north of here yesterday when a nuclear device was dropped from a speeding Air Force bomber.

No 'Veep' for Warren

Sacramento—Gov. Earl Warren, Republican candidate for President said yesterday he was "not interested" in the vice-presidency. He said he would "spend considerable time" in Oregon campaigning for the May 16 primary.

Truman Signs Peace Treaty

Washington—President Truman signed the Japanese peace treaty yesterday, paving the way for Japan's return to the family of free nations before the end of the month.

Taft Assails Truman

Pittsburgh—Senator Robert A. Taft said yesterday that President Truman's seizure of the steel industry sets a precedent which would allow "any president to make himself a dictator."

Contest Stresses Personality, Poise

Entrants in the Miss San Jose contest will be judged on personality, poise, beauty and talent, according to a release from the Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the annual contest.

Any single woman between the ages of 18 and 27, who is a high school graduate, is qualified.

Judging in the beauty division will be based on the appearance of the contestant in a bathing suit and an evening gown.

An elimination contest will be held on May 1 at Hart's department store and final judging will be May 25 at the Rose Gardens. The winner will compete in the Miss California contest.

Application blanks may be obtained in the cosmetics departments of local department stores, and turned in to the Junior Chamber of Commerce office in the Civic auditorium.

Bea Alksne, sophomore, commercial art major, was winner of last year's Miss Jose title.

Walking in Fashion Tomorrow; Parking Problem on Campus

If you're a car owner, and a student or employee of the college, and you have business on campus tomorrow, here's some friendly advice—leave the cherished jalopy at home in the morning and walk or take the bus. Parking is going to be tough all over.

Office of City Engineer Harold Flannery says San Fernando street, between second street and seventh street, will be closed for paving.

The contractor handling the job wants to complete it in one day if possible, so no parking will be allowed in the area. All cars improperly parked will be towed away at the owner's expense, the city engineer's office said.

To add to the turmoil, Ed Ord, parking lot chairman for A Phi O, national honorary service fraternity, said there will be no parking Thursday in the new lot his fraternity is preparing.

Suspense Thriller Shows Tomorrow

Alfred Hitchcock's psychological suspense thriller, "Shadow of A Doubt," will be shown in the Little Theater tomorrow at 4 and 8 p.m., as part of the Unusual Motion Picture series.

Rock surfacing of the parking lots on Eighth and Ninth streets, between San Antonio and San Carlos streets, will begin this morning and continue through tomorrow afternoon.

The lot will be permanently available beginning Friday morning.

Interviews Show Spartans Cheat

Poll Reveals Students Are Pessimistic About Establishment of Honor Code

The issue of cheating on college campuses has long been of particular interest to students and faculty alike. Other campuses have taken polls and discovered that an amazing amount of cheating does go on, except, possibly, at schools where an honor system has become traditional.

So, members of the Spartan Daily staff have conducted a symposium, asking nearly 150 students selected at random the answers to these three questions: 1. Have you ever cheated in college? 2. Would you cheat if the opportunity presented itself? 3. Do you think an honor system would work here?

Illinois Seeks Graduate Aids In IA Teaching

Three openings for industrial arts students to serve as graduate assistants in the I.A. department at the University of Illinois for the 1952-53 school year now exist, according to a letter received from the university by Dr. Heber Sotzin, director of Industrial Arts.

The letter stated that one student is needed to serve as a research assistant and to work with members of the I. A. staff on projects now under way. The other two men will be expected to teach one shop course each semester in the undergraduate school.

Each of the part-time positions will pay at least $1200 for the regular school year plus tuition and fees in the graduate college. These assistants will be permitted to take three units of graduate work each semester.

Dr. Sotzin considers this a fine opportunity for any industrial arts major who wishes to further his education in the field. Interested persons are requested to contact Dr. Sotzin in the I. A. office as soon as possible.

The university will take into consideration the abilities of the three men selected to carry out the specific research and teaching assignments, but they must be outstanding students who are able to meet the requirements for admission to the advance graduate program in industrial education and are interested in pursuing graduate study beyond the master's level.

Name Cards Today

Today will be the last day Senior graduating students will be able to purchase name cards from the booth at the Library arch, it was announced by Alice Brown, senior class representative.

Majority Admit Cheating

The results of this poll show that 52 per cent of all interviewed admit cheating in college at one time or another, while 48 per cent say they have not. Many say they have changed their viewpoint on cheating since first entering college, but 44 per cent say they still would cheat if given the chance. Approximately 48 per cent say they would not, and 8 per cent were uncertain.

The question of establishing an honor system on campus, long thought to be the solution to all cheating problems, received a majority of negative replies, as 56 per cent of those students questioned said they did not think it would work. This was the highest percentage of agreement reached on any of the questions asked.

Honor System Unpopular

Only 31 per cent felt that the honor system would work on this campus, while 13 per cent were uncertain. Men and women, who were polled equally in number, showed an exact percentage agreement on both the positive and negative sides of this question.

More women than men admitted having ever cheated, the females polling 53 per cent to the males' 51 per cent. More of the men, however, seemed to have learned their lesson the hard way, with only 40 per cent saying they would cheat now, as compared to the women's 50 per cent.

Surprisingly enough, several students said they did not feel that the honor code was as successful at Stanford as some say. One young man who lives in Palo Alto said he felt that SJS students were more honest than those at Stanford.

Temptations Too Great

A decided pessimism in human nature was evidenced from many of the comments made to the reporters. Several students said that most people do not have the strength of character necessary to resist temptation. "People just don't have it in them," said one.

Many of those who said they were uncertain as to whether they would cheat or not, if given the opportunity, qualified their answers by saying they would be more likely to do so in courses required by the school than in major courses. "In required courses," said one girl, "the motivation is to get through, by hook or by crook. In major courses, however, the students have a sincere desire to learn something."

Those who felt the honor system would work on this campus did so because, as one fellow expressed it, "there is plenty of honor around here; what we lack is the incentive and the spirit. I think we should give it a chance."

Today's Weather

A special shipment of two-way wrist barometers is on its way now from Epping-Opping for Sir Updyke's army of weather reporters and spies. Reporters must supply their own two-way wrists.

The first segment of the warm-air mass from the Sahara desert will arrive this afternoon. Temperature today will reach a high of 70-80.

Spartans Down On Honor System

"As has been shown at other colleges, an honor system is fool-proof. However, there is one thing essential for proper functioning—namely, honor."

So commented one student at Tufts college, Mass., when interviewed on the advisability of establishing an honor system there.

In a similar poll conducted on this campus (see page 1), 56 per cent of the approximately 150 students interviewed said an honor system would not work here.

Does such response illustrate a lack of "honor" on the part of SJS students? And if so, does it indicate a realistic attitude, or a defeatist nature which would doom to failure any attempt to reform?

Spartan "thumbs down" on a system which could foster that honor on campus is deplorable. There is no guarantee that such a code would work, but isn't it worth a try? A.B.

Phone To Have Starring Role In Forthcoming Comedy Play

John Van Druten's romantic comedy of manners, "There's Always Juliet," which will be presented in the Little Theater Apr. 25-30, will star two student actors, two student actresses . . . and a telephone.

The actors will be Jerry Charlebois and Doug Murray, and the actresses will be Ruth Dougherty and Joan Skrobecki.

The telephone? This instrument can be said to have a starring role, according to Miss Elizabeth Loeffler, director of the play, because the plot is developed mainly through telephone conversations.

The play opens and closes with a telephone conversation. Since there are only four people in the play, and one setting is used throughout, the telephone comes to be the symbol of the outside influences working on the main characters. It represents the influences of their friends, who are never seen in the play, on their lives.

Tickets for this comedy are on sale now in the Speech office, Room 57, for 60 cents to ASB card holders and 90 cents to others.

Thrust and Parry

Cause for Alarm

Dear Thrust and Parry (and A.B.):

On Apr. 14 a Spartan Daily editorial stated: "The situation is cause for real alarm. If a person learns to cheat his way through college, will he not get the mistaken idea that he can cheat his way through life?" Also there was a reference made to news stories appearing in national magazines pointing to "the incontrovertible fact—college students do cheat."

In these times of false alarms, loyalty oaths and irresponsible allegations, let us be a bit more particular about finding the real cause for this alarm. If we are really concerned about "cheating," then let us look to the broad pattern of cheating we find clearly outlined in the very warp and woof of social structure.

Let us become alarmed about pattern of deception that begins when a youngster enters his first school room and hears "honesty is the best policy."

He often continues this deception right on through college only to be contradicted when he "goes out into the cold, cruel world." If it is the business world he enters, he can look forward to a whole system of legalized cheating methodology available for taking advantage of the consumers' ignorance of commercial "techniques."

The filing cabinets of social workers in psychiatry furnish an unbelievably large number of case histories that reveal an emotional disturbance precipitated by the patient's inability to adjust to the cheating pattern of the world he found after leaving the protective "halls of ivy." It is so surprising that some college students start to make their adjustments before they get out of school?

I also find cheating distasteful, and I'm ready to sound the alarm—but, I can't get excited about treating the cheating done by college students as an incident for the "sound & fury" treatment. If I follow the fire wagon to a serious conflagration I want to look for the fire and not waste my energy fighting the smoke.

En Garde!

Dear Thrust and Parry:

As to the question of whether the name of SJS should be changed to California State, we would like to say that we are very much in favor of the change.

Since we are the oldest and largest state college, we feel that we have priority to the name of California State over the other State colleges in California. We are, we believe, the first college to attempt to be known as California State, and if the others are against this change why haven't they tried to change their names? Most other states have State colleges named after them so why don't we get on the band wagon?

As California State, we would be better known and would therefore have more prestige in sports and academic endeavor.

We challenge the opposition!
California State Students

'Provincial' Cal

Dear Thrust and Parry:

It has been with a great amount of interest that we have read the letters in your column on the proposed name change of San Jose State college to California State college.

We realize and fully appreciate the tremendous amount of prestige a change of name would bring. San Jose State is finally being recognized as one of the foremost colleges, not only in the State of California, but in the United States as well. It is for this reason, however, we oppose the name of California State college. Because of the great prestige which some think we need to obtain through a source outside of the college's, we feel that the name California State is not of a calibre worthy of our school. After all, California is only one of 48 states.

Therefore, we wish to propose the name American National college. If this name is adopted it will put a stop to the arguments used to oppose the name California State college. We will avoid the possibility of being confused with the University of California; we will not have to state why we should place ourselves completely above the other State colleges; and, furthermore, the name American National college is sufficiently removed from San Jose State college so that anyone mentioning the name will be able to spend many confusing minutes vainly trying to explain why a distinctive name that was so well known in many fields of endeavor was changed to a new name which means nothing.

Respectfully,
Marie Branchi, ASB 4148

Scheberies, Martinez, Adkins, Portal On TV

By WALT ROESSING

One present and two former Spartan boxers appeared on Bud Foster's San Francisco television show Monday night with Coach Dee Portal, Chuck Adkins, Mac Martinez and Jack Scheberies were on the sportscast in Golden Raider boxing regalia.

Portal displayed to the television viewers the innovations that have been made in the 12 ounce collegiate boxing glove. He also demonstrated the boxing headgear, which is familiar to followers of the college team.

The Spartan mentor said on the show that "college boxing is the most underestimated sport in college. Spectators don't realize that college boxing is plenty rugged."

When interviewed, Martinez said he won't turn professional if he does not succeed in qualifying for the 1952 Olympic team. The former Spartan boxing captain, 1950 125 lb. National Collegiate Athletic association champ and present National Amateur Athletic Union titlist, hopes to go into mission work in either Central America or South America in the near future. Martinez said the exact date depends upon when he finishes his graduate work at the college and if he qualifies for the Olympics.

Adkins, who is the present 139 lb. National Collegiate Athletic association champion, appeared to be uneasy under the glowing television lights in the San Francisco studio. The Spartan boxer disclosed that he hasn't made up his mind yet whether he will turn professional or continue in college next year.

His main objective, at the moment, is making the United States Olympic squad. By winning the NCAA crown this year he has already qualified for the Odympic tryout finals which will be held in Kansas City, Mo., June 16, 17 and 18.

Jack Scheberies, who boxed for the college last year and was runner-up in the NCAA finals as a heavyweight, was very reticent on the program. The only remark that the graduate student made was concerning the National Amateur Athletic union heavyweight championship he won this month in Boston, Mass. The 195 lb. boxer said, "It sure was a rough tournament."

Scheberies put on a short exhibition of displaying his bolo punch which was his most deadly weapon in achieving the national AAU distinction. The bolo punch is an exaggerated uppercut which is usually followed by a whistling hook to the head. The heavyweight king demonstrated this combination against Adkins.

Martinez and Adkins also put on a short exhibition of actual boxing in the television studio especially for the benefit of the viewers who have not been fortunate enough to witness collegiate boxing previously.

These three champions and Coach Portal put on a great show and demonstrated to the watching "spectators" why San Jose State college is continually ranked high among the boxing powers in the United States.

Hallberg in Lake Merritt Hospital

Ed Hallberg, Spartan first baseman who was injured in a game with San Francisco State college there last Saturday afternoon, will be in Lake Merritt hospital in Oakland approximately 11 more days before he is released. Hallberg broke both bones in his lower left leg while sliding into second base trying to break up a Gator double play.

Top honors at Santa Cruz, Rio and Cap last week went to the cotton print sand and surf suits that came from HAMMER'S, First near San Carlos. And here's something you wouldn't suspect—it did not take a ten-dollar bill to buy them.

Perry Seeks Umpires for 'Mural League

Intramural softball teams playing this afternoon may have to use their own men for umpires. If they find that no league umpires are present at game time they should proceed with makeshift officials, according to Sports Director Bill Perry.

Perry said there is an urgent need for league umpires. The umpires are paid $1.50 a game. Games usually last from 5:15 to 6:30 p.m. All interested men should contact Perry immediately. Experience is preferable but not essential for the job.

Golfers Defeat Bears 23-4

Golden Raider golfers smeared University of California at San Jose Country club yesterday by the lopsided score of 23-4. The Spartan golf team had been figured to win from the Bears but not by such a wide margin.

It was the seventh straight victory for the State team in match play.

Ken Venturi continued his torrid pace of the past few meets and led the Spartans with a four under par 66. He shot a three under par 67 against Stanford last Friday.

Gordon Williams finished second for the Gold and White with a one over par 71.

Other Spartans in the match play were Wally Regan, Bill King, Gene Broderick, Stan Gum and Frank Christopher.

The Bears had previously lost a match to Stanford by a score of 18½ to 8½. The Spartans have beaten Stanford 16½ to 10½ and therefore rated the edge over the Cal team.

Walt McPherson is coach of the Spartan golfers.

Fourteen Team Slate Enters Judo Tourney

Spartan judo men are priming for the fourth annual San Jose Invitational judo tournament to be held at Spartan gym Saturday.

Fourteen college, club and service teams have accepted bids for the tourney. Championship of California will be awarded the winner because the Los Angeles club entry is southern California champion and San Jose State holds the northern California crown.

Teams entered in the tourney are California, Marin junior college, Stockton Judo club, Laws Judo academy, San Carlos Judo club, San Francisco Judo club, Southwest Los Angeles, San Jose Buddhist church, American Federation of Oakland, Los Angeles Judo club, the Spartans, Fort Ord, Camp Roberts and Travis Air Base.

Seeking its eighth triumph of the season, the Spartan swimming team engages San Francisco State tonight at 8 o'clock in the Spartan pool.

The locals swamped the California Aggie club 61-23 in the campus pool Friday night to register their seventh win in nine meets. Scoring double triumphs for the Spartans were Fred Postal and Dick Lebedeff.

Tennis Team Wins COP Match 8-1

A strong Spartan tennis team defeated College of Pacific yesterday here by a score of 8-1.

The Spartans had been out of action since their defeat at the hands of University of California almost two weeks ago. A scheduled game with University of San Francisco for last Friday was canceled.

First seeded Spartan Butch Krikorian defeated COP's first man in straight sets 6-3 and 6-3, to lead the Golden Raiders to their victory. The match was the first between the two schools for two years.

UC, UCLA Offer Engineering Examinations to Fall Enrollees

The Engineering Qualifying examination will be given on this campus May 3 at 8:15 p.m., according to information supplied by Mrs. Lillian Scott, adviser for pre-professional programs.

Students who plan to enter the College of Engineering, University of California at Berkeley or Los Angeles in September should make arrangements to take this examination before Apr. 26. This test will be given at various colleges throughout the state.

Two examinations will be offered on May 3, and students will be tested on the following subjects: English, chemistry, physics, math and engineering drawing. The lower division test, which is an aptitude test, is required for entering freshmen and sophomores. The upper division section will be administered to incoming juniors and seniors and graduate students desiring a second bachelor's degree.

Persons who plan to take these examinations are requested to register in Room 110.

Science Graduate Directs Exhibits

Pat Sheppard, graduate student in biological science, is in charge of all exhibits set up in the glass compartments in the Science building.

"With the open house coming up, we plan to have all the cases filled plus having the Moffett Field meteorological exhibit again," said Miss Sheppard.

Some of the items currently displayed are "The Story of Borax," a rayon exhibit, a display dealing with rubber, and a collection of animal skeletons and a human skeleton in which similar bones are pointed out.

Students Hank J. Krutzmann and Tom Kyracraft, Miss Sheppard said, spent a month and a half setting up the exhibit of cans on the first floor. They did it as a part of Education 273, a class which learns to prepare displays.

Miss Sheppard advises students in this class on organization and materials. Many of the exhibits are sent from companies and firms ready to be set up, she said.

Stanford Prof Says Coal Is S.A. Drawback

"The 20th century is not South America's," said Dr. C. Langdon White, head of the Geography department at Stanford university, in his International Pan American Day address Monday morning in the Little Theater.

The lack of coal is the major reason for South America not taking the lead in the 20th century, Dr. White said.

Consumer goods can be produced, but without the necessary coal and heavy industry, South America must remain in the background, Dr. White told his audience.

Dr. White said that the United States and South America must get along together. The U.S. has need for many Latin American resources, and the southern neighbors have a need for U.S. goods. He said that there must be aid on a mutual basis, and only in that way can the chasm between North and South America be bridged.

Graduate Writes Book on Pacific

Dr. Earl S. Pomeroy, '35 SJS graduate who now is associate professor of history at the University of Oregon, is the author of "Pacific Outpost," published recently by the Stanford University Press.

The book deals with a history of Guam and the South Pacific island groups from 1898 to 1951 and explains American strategy in those islands and their significance in international affairs.

Dr. Pomeroy also is a graduate of the University of California, and has taught at the University of Wisconsin, University of North Carolina and Ohio State university. This is his first published book, although he has had numerous articles printed in magazines.

ISO Will Consider International Day

Formation of plans for International Day will be on the agenda for the International Students Organization meeting tonight at 7:30 o'clock in Room 24, according to Herbert Perry, president.

Tentative plans for the day, scheduled for sometime in May, include a movie, banquet and exhibits.

Class Has Dinner

The advanced cooking class' first formal dinner of the spring quarter was given Monday evening, according to Miss Gladys Nevenzel, associate professor of home economics.

The hostess for the event, Louise Shoemaker, assisted by Bertha Seeliger, served shrimp creole over rice, string beans, cole slaw, hot rolls, coffee and lemon sherbet.
